Amanda Tuck

I have spent a working life as a teacher and learner, having taught people all sorts of subjects and ideas ranging from preschool age to adults at various times. I have two wonderful adult sons and four grandchildren who all give me so much.

I retired from paid work in 2017 having been headteacher and researcher for the NCSL focussing on the differences and advantages of working with pupils, staff and parents in small primary schools. The thing that inspires me is that I am still learning, and remain excited by working on projects which give me opportunities to develop both people and ideas collaboratively. UTTT has given me so much already.

Following retirement I was asked to train as a Licensed Lay Minister in the Church of England, and have been welcomed into the Diocese of Ely and ministry team in Orwell. New challenges lie ahead as I step out and develop this next phase of opportunities to explore ideas together and to go where the Spirit takes me.
